Course Description
We cannot escape the effect that public policy has on our lives. The air we breathe, the cars we drive, the food we eat and pretty much everything that we do is affected by the policies of the federal, state or local governments. Unfortunately, the quality of debate about public policy in political campaigns, on television news shows, from the “pundits” on Fox and MSNBC as well as in many newspapers or on the web is not very good. Most of the things we read in newspapers and magazines, see on television or see on the web does not demonstrate a very sophisticated understanding of how policy is made, paid for, implemented or an understanding how we determine if a program has achieved it goals.

The combination of the importance of public policy and the low level of debate means that we don’t have a very informed discussion of the policies that affect our lives. The lack of a very informed debate means that, all too frequently it seems lately, have polices that are not very effective, are expensive and may lead to negative consequences.

This course will provide you with information to help you better understand how policies are made, paid for and implemented. The course presents a framework to understand the formation, adoption, budgeting, implementation and evaluation of public policy. This framework provides a basis for detailed discussions and debates about current policy issues.
The class is offered online. All of the instructional material including lectures, slides, most of the reading materials, quizzes and exams will be online with the exception of the book used for the debates.

Course Goals and/or Objectives
By the end of this course, students will be:
- able to explain how policy is made, funded and implemented;
- able to discuss current policy issues using these key policy concepts;
- prepared to enter a graduate program that will prepare you for a career of public service.
